2 Saint John Trade & Convention Centre, 1st Level Market Square (near Hilton Saint John)

Several pieces are featured at this location, including:

- HMCS Saint John in Action, 1983, by John Alford
- Ocean Bone, 1983, by Marie-Hélène Allain
- People Apart Moving Together, 1983, by John Hooper
- Sea Forms, 1983, by Bonnie & Jack Massey
- Strange Plants, by Kathy Hooper
- Strata I, 1983, by Peter Powning

3 Free Public Library, 2nd Level Market Square

The library's main branch moved to this location in 1983 from its first home in the Carnegie Building, now the Saint John Arts Centre, and features a number of sculptures and paintings:

- Barbara Ring Memorial Art Collection, 1983, Various Artists
- Boy on Stilts, by John Hooper
- Flesh, 1999, by Michel-Antoine Fournier
- Punctuated Blue, 1995, by Peter Powning

- The Front Desk, 1991, by Ned A. Bear
- The Sea Told Me, 1983, by Marie-Hélène Allain

4 Market Square

At Market Square you will find numerous pieces of public art, including:

- Balloon Girl-Charlotte, 2005, by Judi Pennanen
- Gray Jays, 2017, by Phil Savage
- Lego Timepiece, 2016, by Robin Sather & SJ Community Museum
- Marco Polo, 2003, on loan from the New Brunswick Museum
- Nest, 2017, by Deanna Musgrave
- Timepiece, 1984, by John Hooper
- Untitled (2 biplanes – wood), 1983, by Julian Bowron

5 City Hall

City Hall boasts prominent pieces of art on the outside of the building:

- Progression, 1972, by Claude Roussel
- Attached to the building is a three-piece red, orange, and yellow sculpture, commissioned in 1971 when City Hall moved to Market Square.
- Coming in 2022 – Sculpture Saint John piece, 2022, by Phil Savage

6 Saint John Arts Centre, 20 Peel Plaza

A number of pieces are installed inside and outside this former library:

- Delancey's Encampment Mural, 1985, by Fred Ross
- Commissioned by and donated to the City of Saint John by the Saint John Bicentennial Commission, Inc.
- Fiddlehead, 2002, by James Boyd
- Donated to the City of Saint John by the Deep See Visual Arts Festival.

7 Union Street, adjacent to Loyalist House

- Untitled, 1985, Artist Unknown
- This work was commissioned by Parks Canada in 1985 for the 200th anniversary of the City. The piece evokes the Union Jack flag of the United Kingdom.

8 Saint John City Market, Germain Street Entrance

Figurehead, 1995, by Carol Taylor

The concept for this piece came from the market itself. The ceiling timbers supporting the market's roof are similar to the hull of bygone wooden vessels. The artist designed a figurehead, such as those placed on these historic ships.

9 Princess Street (between Charlotte Street and Germain Street)

Hayward, 2021, by Mique Michelle

Part of 2021's Festival Inspire, this piece was painted as a means to create dialogue of allyship, and the shared responsibility to acknowledge and respect the land on which we live.

10 Corner of Canterbury and Princess Streets

Clementine, 2019, by Dodo Ose

Inspired by the annual Moonlight Bazaar event and the 50th anniversary of the moon landing, this piece is a woman finding the first spaceship that took a picture of the moon. That ship was named Clementine.

11 Grannan Street (between Germain Street and Canterbury Street)

Are You Going To Do Something With That Dream Of Yours?, 2018, by Gabrielle Brown

Ladder Of Existence, 2018, by Gabrielle Brown

See Stories, 2019, by Uber5000 (Allan Ryan)

Inspired by what lives under the water, and a whole lot of imagination. Instead of a true-to-life painting, this imaginative cartoon-like mural is a vision of the undersea world when nobody's looking.

PUBLIC ART IN #SJTOWNSBYTHEBAY

Public art abounds throughout the Saint John region. Installations by local, national, and international artists can be found in town squares, public parks and along city streets, not to mention those pieces hiding in plain sight or tucked away in alleys or along walking trails.

Tours like the International Sculpture Trail and the Quilt Barn Tour are wonderful ways to discover a variety of these treasures. Alternatively, you can review the list of public art found within our communities and plan your own route!

Our visual arts scene is as multifaceted as it is lively. From the works of Miller Brittain, Fred Ross and John Hooper, to Herzl Kashetsky, Suzanne Hill and Lynn Wigginton – and dozens of others from around the province – our galleries are bursting with pieces that embrace the beauty of this place. More than a dozen galleries can be found in Saint John's uptown core, with even more sprinkled throughout our region.
